

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

- Are you ready to comply with recent legislation regulating soil disturbance work within 250 feet of waterbodies, that in the future, will require you to have a DEP certified individual supervising the work?

If you aren't, the Maine Nonpoint Source Training and Resource Center urges you to attend a Basic and Advanced training session in Erosion and Sediment Control Practices this year. The legislation takes effect on January 1st, 2013 and requires any contractor disturbing more than one cubic yard of soil in the shoreland zone to have the work supervised by an individual certified by DEP in Erosion Control Practices. We anticipate that with current staffing levels we may not be able to get everyone affected by the legislation certified, if individuals wait until 2011 or 2012 to comply. Besides, you will also miss out on the benefits provided by the program including discounts on erosion control products, accelerated permitting and free advertising. So get ahead of the rush and plan to attend a session this winter or spring.

The workshop originally scheduled for March 16, 2010 has been postponed.

It has been rescheduled and will be held on April 8th, at the Fryeburg Rescue Barn, 89 Bridgton Rd. in Fryeburg. The workshop runs from 8:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M.

The program will include lunch, refreshments, and a manual that is yours to keep. By attending a basic and advanced session you qualify to become Certified by the DEP in Erosion and Sediment Control Practices. You will also learn about new state of the art erosion control techniques as well as ways to save time and money on your construction projects.
